

About This Conference

The purpose of this global conference is to provide a forum for psychiatric survivors, mad people, activists, scholars, students, radical professionals, and artists from around the world to come together and share experiences of organizing against psychiatry.

Dialogue about these experiences is intended:

- to foster networking and coalition building across social justice movements, disciplines and geographical locations;
- to clarify some key goals in the struggle against psychiatric oppression;
- to develop some longer-term strategies to help us achieve these goals;
- to help us critically examine how we use specific tools for social change, such as the law, science, theory, media, art, and theatre.

This conference is focused on theory and practice that is directly related to developing strategic actions aimed at challenging the power of institutional psychiatry.
